According to Mr. Elemenhaum, the sta-tistics show there is an available wool supply for 1918 of 1,269,000,000 pounds, of which, he estimated, 120,000,000 pounds will be needed for the fighting forces of the nation. If the army and navy requirements were doubled, he de-clared, there would still be available for civilian use a large excess over the wool oonsumption prior to 1917, which was about 600,000,000 pounds.

Half Pabrice Adulterated.

Mr. Kirechhaum went on record as opposed to all fabric adulteration, and said it is estimated that from 50 to 50 per cont, of all fabrics in the men's clothing trade to-day are adulterated with cotton, "a tendency against which the retail merchants should unfinchingly set their faces, on the ground that it will result in misrapresentation, loss of faith and loss of trade." He ridiculed the theory that a mixture of cotton in a fabric reprecents a saving in wool.

Merchants Gain Prestige. Because of the great sacrifices of
